

Our primary method of evaluation is anecdotal. The following is a testimonial by Sai, one of Levee's community members.

I am grateful for Levee launches because it makes me feel very connected to a community. I do not have many recurring celebrations or even festival-like events and I think experiences like that make life very rich. When I see the love and care that goes into creating experiences like this, it makes me even more grateful to attend. I enjoy making and experiencing art with others. I think these events are really special and brings together people that might not normally hang out. And yeah, it is cool to see how many different artists and art supporters. There are coming together for one event. I look forward to every zine launch and they are always very enjoyable to attend.
